HARRIS, HARRIS, HARRIS, HARRIS.

The Republican State Central Committee has opened convenient and commodious headquarters in Wisconsin street, near the postoffice, in the building of our own state, are cordially invited to call upon the city. All republican papers published in the state, and many of the leading organs of the country, will be kept on file, and made accessible to all.

H. A. TAYLOR, CHM.

C. PATRICK, Sec.

The mayor of Jersey City is confident that Blaine will carry New Jersey.

The republican look beated with Blaine, is catching the democratic fish this year.

All signs this year are bad for the democrats. The little star of hope has been eclipsed by the cloud at Buffalo.

The political outlook has become so gloomy for the democrats that those who first bet on Cleveland, are leading by staking their money on Blaine.

There are scores of democratic clubs in the east that call themselves Blaine clubs, but no one has yet heard of a republican club that will vote for Cleveland.

So far as heard from, Cleveland and reform will not carry a single northern state. What is most galling to the democrats, he is not sure of carrying all the southern states.

The independents, or a few of them, seem to swallow the head of the democratic toad with a reasonable relish, but when they get to the tail, the dose makes them bilious.

It is curious to find in this country that he could make a wide reputation and more money by writing a story of Cleveland and Son than he did by writing Donkey and Son.

One day in November, 1880, Henry Ward Beecher said in his pulpit, "The democratic party is so corrupt that a decent man would sooner be found in bed with a rotten deed than with this party." But in 1884, Mr. Beecher is found snugly tucked in bed with the worst element in that party.

General Rosecrans, of California, democratic member of congress, can see the trouble with the democratic ticket. He says that the nomination of Cleveland and Hendricks "have chilled two classes of voters—the laborers and mechanics and the soldiers." He hasn't any faith in the success of the ticket.

There have been more republican banners sold so far in this campaign than in any previous one. Twice as many Blaine and Logan banners have been sold as those bearing Cleveland and reform. The largest banner in New York is one of Blaine and Logan, on 23d street, and is 50x30 feet.

Some of the independent and highly moral newspapers which refused to support Blaine, maintained after the national democratic convention that the only issue in the campaign was the character of the candidates. Will those independent and highly moral newspapers please tell the country how they like the character issue as far as heard from?

The other day a German excursion party went from Illinois to Milwaukee. There were about 600 on board. A vote was taken on the train on the presidential question, which showed 490 for Blaine and 200 for Cleveland. When marching through the streets of Milwaukee, the excursionists halted in front of the republican headquarters and gave three rousing cheers for Blaine. This does not indicate that there is an alarming bolt among the German republicans.

Poor Elkins, the once noted landscape painter, of Chicago, died in Colorado the other day, at the age of 37. He was one of the brightest young painters in the west, and soon would have won national fame, but the uncontrollable appetite for drink brought him to poverty and hastened his death. His wife brought suit against some Chicago saloon keepers three or four years ago to recover damages for selling her husband liquor, but the courts and the jury were on the side of the saloons, and she was defeated. Governor Tabor bought one of Elkins' paintings for which he paid $30,000.

To the national democratic committee: The following well known freshmen have renounced Mr. Cleveland since our last report:

Patrick Ford, editor of the Irish World.

Charles Kelly, president of the Land League.

Edward J. Rowe, ex-president of the Irish Confederation.

Col. C. Mallard, of the famous Irish brigade.

Thomas O'Grady, vice president of the Irish Confederation.

Note to the democratic committee:

These men will control about 25,000 votes for Blaine which have heretofore been cast for the democratic candidates.

A brief account of the acts and doings of Thomas A. Hendricks, prepared for the readers of democratic newspapers: He was a pro-slavery politician.

He was for carrying slavery into Kansas.

He was a rank copperhead during the war.

He abandoned his church because the minister expelled the people of his church to support the government.

He denounced Lincoln's administration, and called the soldiers hirelings.

He declared that every regiment of colored soldiers was an insult to every proud man.

He wanted the government to stop the war and compromise with Jeff Davis.

He denied the constitutional right of the government to abolish slavery.

He voted in congress against the negro suffrage bill.

He advocated the reputation of the public debt because it was incurred in "an unholy war against the south."

He was not allowed to speak in his own state at a banquet given to General Sherman because he was a pronounced rebel.

He assessed his clerks without money for political purposes.

He has not reported since he proclaimed himself in favor of the south.

For further particulars concerning the loyalty of Thomas A. Hendricks, apply to Benjamin F. Butler, of Massachusetts.

"I say Dan," said Cleveland to Mr. Manning, "I forgot to ask Marbo the other day if he couldn't put a little poetry in my letter of acceptance. Don't you think it would be a sharp thing to do? I couldn't find any in Blaine's. His is a regular dry sort of a thing, all about ponderous public questions and the glorious record of the republican party, which nobody cares a cent for; and I want Marbo and you to put something in mine that will tickle the boys and make them shout for Cleveland and reform."

Said Dan Manning: "I don't know about that letter of yours. If Blaine hadn't spread all over the field of political economy, human rights, and bit on everything, we could stand some show of making a point. But it was just like Jim Blaine to beat us out of everything."

"Well," said the moral governor, "let us put in a little spicy poetry that will attract attention. I got a piece the other day that I stuck in my vest pocket which will fit the letter nicely:"

"Hitch up the old stage-coach, you boys, Dan Manning take the whip; Conic, Curtis, you get on behind, There may be jolting in this trip."

"Cheer up my boys, I'll take you through, And never mind the storm; Barren will drive the seven miles, Shooting, Cleveland and reform."

"Now that just fits in splendidly," said the governor, "and will take like wild-fire with the boys. It doesn't mention Hendricks, because Curtis and his crowd say he was a copperhead during the war, and I guess he was a little inclined that way. Now if we could only get in a little Latin to give the letter a literary tone, Curtis and the 'better element' would appreciate it. I wish we had a fellow in the democratic party that knew some Latin I would borrow it of him. Let me see, Dan, ain't there a saying that runs? 'Vultus non sine unguine.' And then, another—'Non sum quidam.' Now Dan, if you could put something of this kind in we will knock Blaine's letter higher than Gilderoy's kite."

A SOLEMN QUESTION.

Mr. Cleveland should hasten to do one of two things, either to sweep away the serious charge of gross dishonesty and other personal scandal affecting his private character, or he should modestly decline the nomination tendered him by the national democratic convention. He is in honor bound to do one or the other of these things, and do it quickly, or else his silence will be his condemnation.

The story of Mr. Cleveland's libertinism and his seduction of innocent and simple-minded women, is an unpleasant truth. The press of the country is having more or less to say about it, and the charges against him, which are more scandalous and serious than ever before brought against a public man in this country, are corroborated by the unsolicited testimony of men of the highest standing in Buffalo.

The Gazette, in common with a large majority of the republican papers of the country, has had very little to do in giving this notorious scandal publicity. All this material of fifth touting Mr. Cleveland's debauchery were in the hands of leading republican journals as early as 1882 when he was a candidate for governor of New York; but the conviction generally prevailed among the better class of papers that it would be the wisest thing not to rake over the pertinent details of Mr. Cleveland's private life.

But democratic and independent papers could not resist the temptation to reprint the unclean stories, and to-day they are sent broadcast over the land. For this the democratic party must be held responsible. It furnished the candidate against whom the charge of personal corruption is made, and it furnished the newspapers to give that grave charge publicity.

This is unclean journalism, and the scandal is not such matter as should be carried to the homes of the people. But there is one thought which can not be easily driven from the mind. What a mysterious change has come over the hearts of the independents, that "high moral elements," which can not support Mr. Blaine, whose private life is far out of the touch of scandal, but can lead and magnify Stephen G. Cleveland, whose personal acts and associates are of that character which forbids them being named in the families of this country!

The Gazette does not pass neither upon the truth nor the falsity of the solemn charges against Mr. Cleveland. He will be overwhelmingly beaten whether the republican papers reprint the stories against him or not. The only view to take of the matter is this from the Catholic University, which will meet the favor of all thoughtful men: "Unless Grover Cleveland made the charges against his moral character, the democratic party must meet them by demanding his immediate withdrawal from the head of the ticket."

THE WORLD OF MUSCLE.

Remarkable Feats in Running by George and Deerfoot.

Mike Cleary Meets a Lively Antagonist—The Achievements on the Turf—Scottish Athletic Sports—Base Ball.

LONDON, July 29.—Great excitement attended the effort, Monday, of W. G. George, the amateur champion runner of the world, to beat the running record for one hour, to beat the running record for one hour, to beat the running record for one hour.

On April 7, at the annual meeting of the London Athletic club of Lillibridge, Mr. George undertook to beat the best ten-mile record, that of the American, Deerfoot, who had lowered all previous records by running ten miles in 51 minutes and 20 seconds. It was not believed that George could equal this performance, and much money was wagered on the result.

The amateur, however, had confidence in himself, and went to the scratch in perfect condition after a thorough training. He ran apparently within his powers over the whole distance, and finished in good time.

THE SANITARY CONDITION OF THE CITY.

Pending the passage of the "hog ordinance" by the common council last evening, a very interesting discussion was had relating to the sanitary condition of the city, which was represented to be in a worse condition than ever before known, and which in view of the rapid spread of the cholera, should appear in America this season, calls for some very decisive measures on the part of our people and the city authorities. In the course of his remarks to the council last night, Dr. O. P. Robinson, the health officer, stated that as the health officer of the city, it was his duty to look after nuisances. The "hog ordinance" was upon us; there were many nuisances in the city which should be abated at once, and called especial attention to the numerous hog pens in the city where from one to twenty-five hogs were kept in a seething mass of filth. The task of keeping the pens clean was great; the health of the community was of more importance than the health of the hog. He stated that the health of the people at this time was good, but the sanitary condition of the city was never in a worse condition. He had endeavored to do his duty, and have these pigs cleaned, and many had tried to comply with the order, yet he was accused of neglecting his duty. This was an important question concerning the health of the city. It was not only the hog pens, but hundreds of privy vaults should be attended to, and that the pending ordinance should be passed without delay.

Ald. McLean stated that it looked as though the ordinance was gotten up for the benefit of the health officer. He said the officer had reported only one case, that of Peter Myers, while he (McLean) knew of dozens of cases that he might tell the health officer. He thought the ordinance too severe, and would be doing a great wrong to poor people, who depended upon raising a few hogs to make a living.

Ald. Potter said that Ald. McLean was a member of the board of health, and if he (McLean) had known of these cases it was his duty to report them to the health officer. He agreed with the latter that the health of the community was of more importance than that of hogs.

Ald. McLean—I did report several cases at the meeting on Saturday night. The above are the reasons given for the passage of the ordinance, and the only objection to it. The ordinance, we believe to be a good one. In some cases it may do injury to a few, but it is for the greatest good to the many, and we sincerely hope it will be enforced.

CHESTNUT CEMENTATION.

As one of the pleasant amusements of life, but a recent taker whose "gums of thought" drop from his lips which display a yellow teeth, going to rack and ruin, makes less impression than he or she otherwise would. Dear this in mind, conversationalists, and lead added force to your utterances by keeping your teeth white and bright. ZODONOLY, the whitest and most thorough of tooth preparations, which remove tartar, renders the gums healthy and purifies the breath.

The history of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is identified with the history of New England for the last fifty years. It cures croup and colds.

Dr. Williams' Boiling Water Purifier.

Mr. G. M. Drumminger is meeting with very flattering success with his patent boiler water-purifier, of which he recently obtained a patent. Some six weeks ago one of these purifiers was placed in the steam boiler at the Wisconsin shoe company's factory, and upon being taken out yesterday was found to have accomplished all that was claimed for it. The following testimonial from Mr. J. L. Tolson, engineer, will explain itself:

JANESVILLE, Wis., July 24, '94.

G. M. Drumminger, Esq.,

Dear Sir:—The boiler water purifier that you put into the boiler at the factory of the Wisconsin shoe company was taken out to clean after having been in six weeks. We found it had collected during that time nearly fifteen pounds of scale and sediment, and that the boiler was entirely free from scale. I consider it does all you claim, and take pleasure in recommending it to all parties using boilers for steam purposes.

Very truly,
GEO. L. TOLSON,
Engineer Wisconsin Shoe Co., Janesville, Wis.

HAY FEVER.

From Col. J. M. Hadfield, of New York: I have suffered severely for the last ten years from Hay Fever in early and mid-summer and in the fall. I desire in the interest of my fellow sufferers to testify in favor of Dr. Williams' Cream Balm. My short use of it demonstrated its efficacy. J. M. Hadfield, 401 Broadway.

I can recommend Dr. Williams' Cream Balm to relieve all persons suffering from Hay Fever. I have been a great sufferer from these complaints and have used it. I have recommended it to many of my friends for Catarrh, and in all cases where they have used it, it has relieved them. They have been cured. T. KINNEY, Dry Goods Merchant, Elmhurst, N. Y.

MILTON.

John Carroll had a very narrow escape from death Saturday evening. He was waiting for the excursion train bound east to pass by at the crossing near Lane's mill, and as soon as it passed he drove onto the crossing not seeing the Monroe passenger train bound west, which had been held by the passing excursion train, and the engine struck the buggy behind the horse making it into kindling wood and the horse went directly to the stable. The train was stopped and the train men began a search for the culprit.

The buggy, expecting to find a mangled corpse, and after a time found Carroll seated on the cow-catcher of the engine, clinging to the flag staff, where he had been deposited with neatness and dispatch, excepting bruises on the side of the head and a scratched nose. He was pretty comfortably thankful when he wanted another ride on the engine he had better stop the train and receive permission. It was certainly a wonderful escape from death, and Carroll realizes the fact.
